

"I learned about the Annenberg School of Nursing through the BVNPT website. Annenberg is a great name, and, with the school's Jewish Home affiliation on top of that, the choice was easy. With a small class size, we're a family. Annenberg students are prepared for clinical rotations, and that experience is really awesome. At the Annenberg School, the faculty and staff treat you with so much dignity and respect. They want you to succeed."

"I looked at other schools, but this one really stood out. I heard great things about it – about how much the faculty and staff really cares about you. The tuition covers everything, so you don't have to worry about any extra charges. The small class size and clinical rotations help make the experience amazing! Once you graduate, they keep in touch with you and help steer you in the right direction."

About the Jewish Home

Founded in 1912, the nationally acclaimed non-profit Los Angeles Jewish Home is one of the foremost geriatric care facilities in the United States.

The Jewish Home houses a widely honored staff of geriatricians and more than 1,000 highly skilled employees. The Home provides over 19 medical specialties for the well-being of more than 4,000 men and women each year. Healthcare professionals and practitioners from around the world regularly consult with the Home in an effort to improve elder care in their home countries.

The Annenberg School of Nursing is funded by generous donations from the Annenberg Foundation, Rosanna Bogart, Mel Elliot, Janet and Jack Farber, Mannon Kaplan, Phyllis Milton, Mary Pickford Foundation, UniHealth Foundation, and Ruth Ziegler.

Annenberg School of Nursing does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, creed, religion, ancestry, national origin, age, non-disqualifying disability, sex, sexual orientation, marital status or veteran status in the recruitment of students, or in the implementation of its policies, procedures and activities.

For Students Who Want to Build a Strong Foundation for the Future... We'll Point Them in the Right Direction.

The Annenberg School of Nursing, a program of the Los Angeles Jewish Home, is one of the nation's leading nursing schools.

Located on the Home's Hirsch Family Campus in the San Fernando Valley, the Annenberg School of Nursing offers comprehensive vocational nurse and nurse assistant programs. The vocational nurse curriculum includes anatomy and physiology, pharmacology, fundamentals of nursing, medical surgical nursing and maternal child nursing. The nurse assistant curriculum includes basic resident care, monitoring vital signs and diets, and charting. Our programs provide students the opportunity to work with a variety of patients.

The Annenberg School of Nursing is approved by the Board of Vocational Nursing and Psychiatric Technicians (BVNPT), the Bureau for Private Postsecondary Education (BPPE), California Department of Public Health (CDPH), and accredited by Accrediting Bureau of Health Education Schools (ABHES). We are dedicated to helping you succeed.

Classes are taught in an interactive format combining classroom instruction with hands-on practice. Small class size provides personalized instructions. Individual and group assistance is available.

Take the first step by contacting us at 818.757.4431 or ASN@jha.org.

As a vocational nurse or nurse assistant you will be in great demand to work with patients, residents, and other healthcare professionals.

Both classes meet daily Monday – Friday. Our 12-month vocational nursing program prepares you to take the NCLEX-PN® state licensing exam. Our 22-day nurse assistant program prepares you to take the state certification exam.

Both programs offer an easy admission process:

- California Drivers License or ID
- High school diploma, G.E.D. or equivalent
- Social Security Card
- Pass entrance exam
- Be at least 18 years old
- Ability to read, write, and speak English
- Financial aid available for those who qualify

The skills you learn at Annenberg School of Nursing will positively impact your life: leadership, teamwork, problem solving, communication and teaching skills.

“When looking for a nursing school, I was surprised to learn the Jewish Home had one. After attending an Open House, and with the Home’s great reputation, I knew it was the perfect fit for me right away. The faculty and staff have helped me so much – they are always here for you. There are resources available any time you need them. The all-inclusive tuition is absolutely perfect – there are no surprises! If you’re considering the Annenberg School, come here and check out the options. For me, being here has been a huge blessing.”

The Annenberg School of Nursing offers a comprehensive study in the science of nursing. Our curriculum content includes: anatomy and physiology, pharmacology, fundamentals of nursing, medical surgical nursing and maternal child nursing.

The faculty is approved by the Board of Vocational Nursing and Psychiatric Technicians (BVNPT) and the program is approved by the BVNPT and accredited by Accrediting Bureau of Health Education Schools (ABHES).

Classes meet Monday through Friday in a 12 month program that prepares you to take the National Council Licensure Examination for Practical Nurse (NCLEX-PN®) state licensing exam. Evening clinical rotations may be required of all students enrolled in the program. The program consists of 1680 hours, 1041 clinical and 639 theory.

Our mission is to educate and train women and men to become qualified vocational nurses who will in the course of their careers meet the needs of a culturally diverse society in its continuum of illness, wellness, and prepare for entry into nursing practice.

The campus is located in the central San Fernando Valley and includes two classrooms, a skills lab, a computer lab, a library and a student lounge. The school is conveniently located near public transportation and is easily accessible from freeways 405, 101 and 118. Free parking is available.

The school facilities and equipment comply with all federal, state and local ordinances and regulations, including those related to fire safety, building safety and health.

The vocational nursing program is designed to provide students with the knowledge and skills necessary for an entry-level position as a vocational nurse in a medical office, clinic, HMO, acute care hospital, long-term care facility or other health care settings in which vocational nurses are employed.

Nursing students learn direct patient care, nursing process, assessment, diagnostic measurements, procedures and treatments. The combined academic and clinical training prepares vocational nursing students to take the National Council Examination (NCLEX-PN®) for licensure as a practical/vocational nurse meeting the standards set by the Board of Vocational Nursing and Psychiatric Technicians (BVNPT).

Physical requirements of a vocational nursing student include: being able to move intermittently throughout the work day, must be able to independently push, pull, move and/or lift a minimum of 50 pounds, and must meet the general health requirements set forth by the school and the clinical facilities utilized. Working conditions of a vocational nursing student included: being subject to frequent interruptions, being subject to injury from falls, burns from equipment, odors throughout the work day as well as to reactions from disinfectants, tobacco smoke, and other air contaminants, being subject to exposure to infectious waste, diseases, conditions including TB and the AIDS and Hepatitis B viruses, and be subject to the handling of and exposure to hazardous chemicals.

The program is divided into four terms approximately 12 weeks in length. Each term is comprised of prescribed subjects that build upon each other. Students begin their training in term 1 and progress sequentially through each term until all courses and terms have been successfully completed.

Upon completion of the program, all graduates qualify for employment in various allied health areas. All graduates should be prepared to take the NCLEX-PN®. Those that pass, qualify for entry-level employment as a licensed vocational nurse. Completion of the vocational nursing program is acknowledged by the awarding of a diploma. Vocational nursing salaries range from $18.00 per hour to approximately $22.00 per hour, depending on place of employment and benefitted versus non benefitted positions.

Entrance requirements for admission are: minimum 18 years of age, proof of high school diploma or general equivalency diploma (GED), pass entrance exam, interview with Director, pass a physical exam, obtain clearance on consumer background report and drug screen, perform the physical duties required of a nurse, speak, read and comprehend the English language, complete a student questionnaire, pass a written English examination and be approved by the Director. Foreign students must submit a credentials evaluation.

The following is a statement from The Bureau for Private Postsecondary and Vocational Education, "Regulations 948329(j): No institution offering programs or courses of instruction represented to lead to occupations of job titles requiring licensure or certification shall enter into a course of instruction with a person the institution knows or by exercised of reasonable care, should know, would be ineligible to obtain licensure to the occupation or job title to which the course of instruction is represent to lead, at the time of scheduled date of course completion for reasons such as age, physical characteristics, or relevant past criminal history."

Annenberg School of Nursing will not enroll any student who is knowingly ineligible to obtain licensure or employment in the occupation for which they will be trained.

Annenberg School of Nursing does not offer English-as-a-second language instruction. The school can refer students to learning centers that offer this instruction. All courses are taught in English and students must be able to speak, read, understand, and write the English language fluently. English abilities will be determined through the School admission test, interviews, completion of the application and all submitted written material.

Annenberg School of Nursing may offer services to their students including placement assistance financial aid and no-cost tutoring and remediation. Students who experience academic, personal and family difficulties which may interfere with their academic progress will be referred to the appropriate service to complete their studies. Students who need additional assistance due to academic difficulties may arrange for tutoring through their instructor and specialized tutoring is also available at specified times.

Total cost of the program is $25,000 (subject to increase). Financial aid is available for those who qualify.
